Endless Letter Chain to Find Stolen Kathleen Flanagan. Offers $500 Reward.

Moved by the Mother's Grief, Mrs. McCabe, a Prominent Church Singer, Starts Novel Scheme to Find the Child.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jean McCabe, a prom inent church singer, of No. 42 Broadhut, where she was known to detain hurst avenue, has become greatly interested in the case of little Kathleen Flanagan, and desiring to relieve the sufferings of the distracted mother, shanty, and it was late at night when whom, by the way, she does not know the child was finally found and re- she has started an endless chain of let stored to its parents. The woman ters with the hope of locating the missing child. Mrs. McCabe has launched the letters by sending them to as many mothers in and out of New York as she him to her abode for keeping for the knows, and each one is expected to send mothers. In this way the country around New York can be quickly placed on the alert.

The letter is as follows:

You are a mother; you have loving little toddlers who are your very life. I appeal to you as a mother to use every effort in aiding Mrs. Flanagan to find her lost child. The little one has been kidnapped in all probability. She was last seen on Saturday at the pier at the foot of West One Hundred and Thirty-third street. $500 REWARD. The above reward will be paid by Kathleen Flanagan to her anxand conviction of the kidnappers. BENJAMIN HURTIG.

Benjamin Hurtig, of Hurtig & Seamon proprietors of the Harlem Music Hall, has offered a reward of $500 for the recovery of Kathleen Flanagan and the only thing to make those having a guilty knowledge of the crime talk. "This crime comes so close to me," says Mr. Hurtig, "that I could not refrain from taking some step that may aid in solving the mystery and in se-curing the return of the stolen child if she is stolen. Kidnapping is a par-ticularly atroclous crime, and I believe that all parents should be glad to aid in swelling the reward fund.

Mrs. Flanagan received a letter this norning signed "A Friend," telling her that she could get her child back by praying to St. Anthony. The letter said that St. Anthony's particular vocation was finding lost children, he having de-voted his time on earth to children.

I DON'T WANT TO LOSE KATIE, SAYS STOLEN CHILD'S SISTER.

Elsie Flanagan, seven years old, was probably the last one Who saw her little sister Kathleen on the Cne Hundred and Thirty-third street pier. To an Evening World reporter little Elsie made this statement to-day:

BY ELSIE FLANAGAN.

Katie and I were holding hands and were watching the fishermen just before she left. I wanted her to go to the other side of the pier with me and see the boats, but she pulled back and wanted to watch the fishermen.

So I left her and ran to see a boat leave the other side of the pier. I don't think I was gone more than two or three minutes, and when I went back for Katie she was gone. I asked the men where she was and they said they thought she went to the other side of the pier with me.

I don't want to lose Katie. We played together all the time and now I don't know what to do with her dolls and the dollhouse papa gave her for Christmas
